SINCLAIR DOES TIME FAMOUS AUTHOR IN JAIL FOR EIGHTEEN HOURS

Wears Prison Attire and Works on Stonepile.

REFUSES TO EAT OR DRINK

Specialist Author of Sensational Literature Emerges From Wilmington (Del.) Workhouse Shy Three Pounds of Flesh but Loaded With Material For Magazine Story of Horrors Experienced Behind Walls of Penal Institution.

Wilmington, Del., Aug. 3.—Having served their sentences of 18 hours each in the Newcastle county workhouse for violating the Sunday blue laws of Delaware, Upton Sinclair and his companions were discharged after spending seven hours working on the prison stonepile, where they labored as hard as the 40 other white and negro convicts.

The Socialist author had lots to say in condemnation of the workhouse—especially its menu—and he did not qualify his criticism. He and his followers returned to the colony at Arden where they were received as conquering heroes.

All through the night the author of "The Jungle" lay on the stone floor of a steel cell without a blanket. His friend Berkley Tobey occupied the single cot. Sinclair could not sleep. The surroundings of the jail and moans of the other 337 prisoners inspired him to compose an appropriate poem. This he did mentally. The lines are appropriate to the night in jail and are entitled "The Menagerie." The presence of what Sinclair termed "the vermin" on the cot that his cellmate and single-tax companion Berkley Tobey occupied, suggested the circus-like name.

Slept on Stone Floor.
Sinclair did not eat a morsel of food nor take a single drink of water during his incarceration. He said the prison food was so bad he was afraid he would vomit if he ate it. His reason for refraining from drinking was that there were too many tuberculosis-afflicted prisoners who used the drinking cups.
The first thing he did after reaching Wilmington was to drink a large

Graves Enumerates Points Brought Out at Meeting and Shows That Ohio Has Heretofore Been Easy Picking For School Book Publishers—One Concern Relisted Books Year Before Time Expired to Evade New Statute

Columbus, O., Aug. 3.—The state school book commission discussed the school book situation in Ohio at length and at the end of the session Secretary of State Graves gave out the conclusions reached:

Many school book companies, while insisting they can't sell their books any cheaper in Ohio, are selling the same books at less price in Indiana.

Book dealers throughout Ohio are today selling books in English literature for less than school boards sell them and the book companies admit they sell these books cheaper to the dealers than they do to the school boards.

Would Have Monopoly.
That the American Book company, the largest publisher of school books, will have a practical monopoly in Columbus and other large cities if the courts permit it to disregard the new ruling of the state school book commission, namely, that book companies must sell their books in Ohio at not more than 60 per cent of the list price.

Canoe Tilting and Water Push Ball Are Summer Resort Sports

Photos by American Press Association.

CANOE tilting, a variation of a sport popular in medieval times, has been revived at summer resorts. The contestants ride in canoes instead of on horses. Armed with long poles instead of lances, they try to upset their opponents just as knights of old tried to upset their rivals. As the upsets are frequent the contestants wear bathing suits so that no damage is done, and they have only to right their canoes and climb aboard again to be ready for another encounter. Water push ball is another game that is popular. It is the same as push ball on the ground and is very simple, consisting of one side trying to force the huge globe in one direction, while the other side tries to push it the other until a goal is reached. The pictures of canoe tilting and water push ball shown above were made at the Larchmont Yacht club on Long Island sound. The other picture shows a game of push ball as played by the students at Columbia college, New York.

Haitien Rebels Are Victorious In Fight

HAITIEN REBELS VICTORS

President Simon Agrees to Quit Country in Short Order.

Port-Au-Prince, Haiti, Aug. 3.—The efforts of foreign diplomats have secured a three-day armistice for this city, during which time President Simon has promised he will leave the country. The government has fallen and the rebels are triumphant.

President Simon is preparing to leave at once. His wife and children have already embarked on the 17 December and will transship to the Atlas line steamer Allemania when she arrives.

Five persons were killed and six wounded in the fighting on the waterfront. Although an armistice has been declared, stray bands of revolutionists are foraging in the outskirts of the city. Firing can be heard on all sides.

Ohio River Is Thirsty.
Gallipolis, O., Aug. 3.—The drought has brought the Ohio river down to the lowest stage ever recorded here. Navigation has been entirely suspended and many boats running on the Ohio are stranded on sandbars near here. The government fleet at Dam 26 vent aground, stopping construction work on the dam.

No New Trial For Diegel.
Urbana, Aug. 3.—After killing his former wife in cold blood after she had refused to remarry him, Bert Highwarden, colored, walked calmly into the office of the chief of police with the statement: "She got what was coming to her."

Veteran Educator Dies.
Steubenville, O., Aug. 3.—William A. Urquhart, poet and dean of magazine writers and educators in eastern Ohio, is dead, aged 86 years. He taught school in this part of Ohio over 50 years.

Flaherty Is Elected Supreme Knight

OFFICERS ELECTED

Flaherty Again Heads National Body Knights of Columbus.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 3.—James A. Flaherty of Philadelphia was re-elected supreme knight of the Knights of Columbus. In national convention here. Other officers elected are: Martin H. Carmody, deputy supreme knight, Grand Rapids, Mich.; William J. McGinley, secretary, New Haven, Conn.; D. J. Callahan, treasurer, Washington, D. C.; Joseph C. Peletier, advocate, Boston; Thomas J. McLaughlin, warden, Newark, N. J.; Rev. P. J. McGivney, chaplain, Middletown, Conn.

Want Nickel Shows Abolished.
Cleveland, O., Aug. 3.—The question of doing away with the nickelodeon all over the United States and putting moving picture shows on a 10-cent basis is the principal matter of business before the national convention of moving picture managers, which is in session here. About 5,000 moving picture theaters are represented.

Boys Brother's Interest.
Upper Sandusky, O., Aug. 3.—Sherman A. Cuneo became sole proprietor of the Union Republican, daily and weekly. His brother, E. N. Cuneo, retired on account of ill health. The paper will continue Republican in state and national affairs but otherwise independent.

Boats Stranded in Ohio River.
Columbus, O., Aug. 3.—Judge Kinkead overruled the motion for a new trial in the case of Rodney J. Diegel, sergeant-at-arms of the senate, convicted of bribe solicitation. Sentence was deferred until the judge considers the motion for a further delay of 40 days.

CONGRESS DISCUSSES MANY SUBJECTS

Congressmen Unable to Concentrate Their Minds.

SESSION IS FULL OF GINGER

Representative Burdette of Alabama Arouses Enthusiasm of Democratic Members by Proposing Majority Leader Underwood as Candidate For Presidency — Governor Tener and Victor Berger to Oppose Partisan Ball Game.

Washington, Aug. 3.—In connection with the discussion of the Democratic cotton revision in the house, numerous other topics, such as baseball, politics, the beef trust and other unrelated subjects were injected into the conversation.

Representative Kinkead, Captain of the Democratic nine which will meet a Republican team next week, gravely announced in debate that all arrangements for the game had been completed.

"It has been decided," he said, "that Governor John K. Tener of Pennsylvania, who was formerly a member of the house, shall umpire for the Republicans. Two years ago, as a member of the house, he led the Republican team to defeat. The Democratic team has selected Victor Berger of Milwaukee as its umpire. For baseball purposes Mr. Berger, who is a Socialist, is good enough for us."

Starts Underwood Boom.
Speaking in support of the pending cotton bill, Representative Burdette of Alabama concluded as follows: "Alabama nominates her favorite son, Oscar W. Underwood, for the presidency." This sentiment was applauded by all the Democrats present.

Representatives Weeks of Massachusetts and Crumpacker of Indiana, Republicans, opposed the cotton bill. Representative Lenroot of Wisconsin, an insurgent, announced to Democratic applause that it was his intention to vote for the pending measure. General debate on the cotton bill was concluded. The bill was taken up under the five-minute rule today and Leader Underwood plans to pass it before adjournment tonight.

Colors and Smells.
A celebrated chemist in Paris publishes the following concerning the relations of colors and smells:

Black of all colors absorbs smells most freely. Dark blue, green, yellow and red follow. White is least liable to absorb smells; hence its preference for nurses and cooks.

The scientist tells of a famous tenor whose voice loses all its timbre the moment he smells lilacs. Lilacs in a room are liable to take his breath away.

Other scientists contribute these strange facts:

A young Italian girl suffering from hysteria and unable to sleep was cured by the application of musk to her nostrils, musk having the same effect upon her as a powerful narcotic.

A famous Italian surgeon, Scalliger, was nearly frightened to death when he accidentally inhaled the odor of a lily.

The Princess Lamballe got cramps when she smelled violets, and Catherine I. of Russia swooned when she saw a rose.—Baltimore News.

Lima, O., Aug. 2.—Fred Bowman, 50, engineer on a traction threshing engine, pulled the throttle the wrong way when he started his engine and was perhaps fatally crushed when the engine backed into the separator.

Had Been Riding the Bumpers for Hours

ATTEMPTED TO SHIFT POSITION

Sudden Lurch of the Train Threw

Him Under the Wheels. Railroad Surgeon Has Him Removed to the Hospital Where Left Leg is Amputated and the Mangled Right Foot Dressed With the Hope of Saving It.

With the left leg severed below the knee and right foot badly mangled, covered with blood and groaning with pain, Thomas McCoy, a youth of 17 years, was picked up by a C. H. & D. freight crew just north of the B. & O. crossing in this city, at three o'clock Thursday morning. Dr. F. E. Todhunter was quickly summoned, and he in turn summoned the Albert McCoy ambulance and the young man was removed to the Hodson hospital where the left leg was amputated just above the knee, and the right foot dressed to the best of the surgeon's ability.

The shocking accident happened while young McCoy was stealing a ride on the trucks of a C. H. & D. freight, returning from Garry, Ind., to his home near Jackson, Ohio. He had been on the train for hours, and grew numb from occupying one position so long. When the train came to a stop, he attempted to shift his position, and at that instant the train gave a jerk forward, throwing him beneath the wheels. He made a vain effort to save himself, and while he succeeded in keeping his body from the greedy jaws of the grinding wheels, his leg and foot were caught and crushed.

Young McCoy never lost consciousness, but screamed for assistance and the brakeman heard his cries and went to him. As soon as he saw what had happened he quickly bandaged the leg above the knee, which action probably saved the boy from bleeding to death before a physician arrived.

When Dr. Todhunter arrived and ascertained the nature of the injury

Taft Is Urged To Use Veto

Stand-patters Hard at Work on Taft on Tariff Bills.

Washington, Aug. 3.—Republican "stand-patters" who talked with President Taft made the positive prediction that Taft would veto both the wool tariff revision bill and the free list bill if they reached him.

The president himself is reticent on the subject, but the confidence exhibited by stand-patters was taken to indicate that he had given them some hint regarding his intentions. If the senate and house agree on the two measures, as now seems likely, and the president vetoes them, the prospects are that the present session will come to an abrupt end.

Murderer Gets Light Sentence.

Norwalk, O., Aug. 2.—William Russell, charged with complicity with Frank Crandall, 17, in the shooting and killing of Captain Harry Noble, Nickel Plate detective, at Bellevue, was sentenced by Judge Garver to a life term in the penitentiary. Young Crandall, the principal, who did the real shooting, on account of his youth was allowed to plead to manslaughter, and was sentenced to an indeterminate term in the Mansfield reformatory.

Had Lost All Track Of Father Time

Combed Miner Rescued After Three Days' Imprisonment.

UPTON SINCLAIR

Served Workhouse Sentence
For Sunday Tennis Game.

Joplin, Mo., Aug. 3.—Exactly three days from the time the earth caved in, entombing him in a zinc mine near here, Joseph Clary was rescued by the miners who have been working hard to free him from the drift 80 feet under the surface of the earth. Clary fell into their arms and wept, while the thousands who stood around the mouth of the shaft shouted for joy. This was a signal that started a thousand whistles blowing, and in a moment the whole district knew that Clary had been rescued.

Clary was greatly weakened by his long stay in the darkness and cold, and after the first outburst of joy it was necessary for a physician to administer stimulants. As soon as he was hoisted to the surface he was carried to his home, where his aged mother lay prostrated since Sunday morning.

Clary had supposed he was underground for weeks, but in reality it was exactly three days.

Anticipated With Pleasure Annual Fayette County Fair Promises Royal Good Time

The Fayette county fair, toward which all eyes are now turned, is an institution that, properly managed, means so much to Fayette county that every citizen should take pride in doing his full share in perpetuating it and making it rank above anything of the kind in the middle west.

With the conditions that exist right here, the above is an ambition that is not a theorist's dream by any manner of means, for Fayette is the finest agricultural and stock raising county in the grandest agricultural and stock raising state in the Union, and furnishes at once the natural resources and conditions essential to attain this end.

The public should bear in mind that the Fayette county fair is in no sense a gambling venture, but an enterprise that appeals to the judgment, skill and education of the agriculturist and breeder of high grade stock. It therefore follows that any institution that stands for the development of the soil and the domestic animal, should meet with the most hearty encouragement, and especially is this true in a county like Fayette—"The Garden Spot of Ohio."

The development of this institution and its various departments to the degree that is possible, will mean as much to the farmer and stock raiser of the county as that grand old horse "Bobby Burns" has meant to the light harness horse.

Encouragement of such a Fair does not mean merely the purchase of a ticket at the "big gate", but the raising or producing of some exhibit that the owner is willing to enter at the fair in friendly competition with his neighbor.

Nothing could be of greater assistance in bringing about the desired end than for the people of the county to see to it that each department is filled to capacity, and when this is done, it will be truly "The Great Fayette County Fair."

Catalogues of the fair are going rapidly, but Secretary W. B. Rogers has a large supply on hands for free distribution. Inquiries are coming in thick and fast, and prospects are for one of the most full and complete exhibits in all departments ever made. The Fair management is greatly pleased to say the least.

Former Clinton County Attorney Dies of Tetanus At a Columbus Hospital

From tetanus, caused by a wound on his hand, received while cutting grass on the lawn of his cottage at Buckeye Lake, Elmer E. Murphy, aged 49, an attorney of Columbus, died at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon at Mt. Carmel hospital. Mr. Murphy had been a patient at the institution for two weeks.

Over a month ago he burned a finger on his right hand, causing a blister to rise. He paid little attention to it and while using a lawnmower the friction against the blister caused the skin to come off. For two weeks the wound seemed to be healing and during this time Mr. Murphy made a trip to Illinois.

On his return the wound again opened and he was taken to the hospital.

Mr. Murphy went to Columbus in 1896 and opened law offices. He was born in Belmont county but first practiced law in Clinton county, to which the body will be taken for interment in Westboro cemetery.

Funeral services were held at 12:30 p. m. today at the residence, 2343 North Fourth street, Columbus.

Local Artists Organize Concert Company

Three of Washington's talented young women, Miss Margaret McClure, Miss Claribel Smith and Miss Irene Tobin, have organized the "Washington Concert Company" and will appear in their first concert at Good Hope M. E. church Friday evening, August the fourth.

Miss McClure is a brilliant pianist; Miss Smith a very pleasing soprano with a clear, sweet voice, and Miss Tobin a delightful and versatile reader, so that there is no doubt that the program which they present tomorrow night will be one rich in entertainment.

les, he had the boy removed to the Hodson hospital and after Dr. Harry Jenkins had administered an anaesthetic, Dr. Hodson and Dr. Todhunter amputated the leg above the knee. The foot may be saved.

Before the anaesthetic was administered, McCoy talked freely, notwithstanding the great pain. He rested after the operation as easy as could be expected. His relatives in Jackson county have been notified, and are expected to arrive this evening. The young man had been working at Gerry, Ind., and wanted to get home, but having no money, sought to beat his way, with the result that he is hopelessly crippled for life, if indeed he recovers from his injuries.

IN PRESENCE OF HUNDREDS Judge Blair Makes Speech AT MAPLE GROVE HOTEL

The Ross County Pure-Elections League held its meeting at Maple Grove hotel on Thursday and the near fifteen hundred people who attended listened to the much-talked of Judge Blair for forty-five minutes, while he told what he had done in his home county of Adams.

The speaker offered no new ideas as a solution of the present evil and in this his hearers were disappointed. Describing the meeting the Scioto Gazette says:

"Some fifteen hundred persons who are interested in pure elections were at Maple Grove yesterday to listen to Judge A. Z. Blair, the famous jurist of Adams county, who purged that county of boodlers by 'dehorning' them.

Judge Blair is a forceful and interesting speaker, and held the attention of his audience from beginning to end. His discourse for the first forty-five minutes was confined to the history of Adams county and its relation to the state and to Ross county, Ross county having been originally a part of Adams county. He spoke of the advantages and disadvantages of living in Adams county and referred to the beginning of the boodle game there, when the court house fight was on between West Union and Manchester.

From that time on boodling became a part and practice of Adams county politicians, in both parties until it had become so open that no one tried to conceal it and entire communities were bought and sold on election day without the blush of shame mantling the cheek of any one. It was the habit and custom and no one expected anything else.

He ran for judge the first time, and through a Democratic trick he pledged himself to clean up the county. This resulted in all the other Republican nominees withdrawing from the ticket and the ticket was only filled by heroic work at the eleventh hour. All were defeated, but he ran ahead of the crowd. He used to be a boodler himself and knew the game. Every one in politics over there had to be a boodler or lose out.

The Judge then described the many incidents connected with his boodle investigation, in which he brought out humor and pathos, trickery and chicanery and all the evils that go along with vote buying.

He made no specific suggestion for remedying the evil, but said that in Adams county the method which appealed to him was to go after the seller of the vote rather than the buyer, because the communities with which he dealt were so educated as to think the buyer was immune and no court could convict them.

He chose the disfranchisement of the voter as a punishment rather than the imposition of a heavy fine as being more calculated to teach a lasting lesson, and left the remedy for the same evil in other communities to those communities to solve for themselves, as the temper of the people could best point out what should be done, for what would work one place would not result in success in other places."

Chillicothe People Suffer Epidemic Of Chicken Thieves

Just now chicken thieves and garden plunderers are having a merry time of it in Chillicothe, and all efforts to apprehend them seem futile. They steal peas, beans, cabbage and in fact everything raised in the garden and literally clean out the chicken coops. In each instance they appear so suddenly and mysteriously and make way with the plunder so rapidly that response by the police to a hurry-up call finds the marauders gone, leaving no trace behind them.

Missing Boy Found Near Columbus

George Kenneth Strubel, the Chillicothe lad who ran away with a horse trader some three weeks ago, and for whom the police have been searching throughout this part of Ohio, has been located near Columbus and returned to his home, to the great delight of his father.

The lad was in an N. & W. camp and the men in camp recognized him from a description given in one of the papers. The man who enticed him away had abandoned him, and could not be located.

bottle of spring water. Don Stephens, son of Frank Stephens, millionaire founder of the Arden colony, and Fred Steinhilber, who were in the prison party, likewise fasted. All of the matters involved in an ice cream establishment here after their release and ate nearly all of the edibles in sight. Sinclair said:

Calls It a Lark.
"It was nothing more than a lark for us all. The experience was one of the most interesting I have ever had. I will write a magazine article about it."

The author laughed when he narrated his work in the prison quarry. "I wheeled 100 wheelbarrows of stone to the crusher. My companions did likewise. We put in seven hours. Aside from thinking of the poem that I wrote out when the guards were not on the job, my thoughts were on a prospective feast of spring water and ice cream."

Sinclair lost three pounds while in jail due to the fasting. A number of times while talking with newspaper men he declared, "and all this for playing tennis on Sunday. It makes me feel like blowing up someone with a bomb." He did not explain just who that "someone" might be.

Dined in Silence.

The principal comment of the author was on conditions at the workhouse. He continued: "Oh, those bestial faces (meaning the convicts) I never saw such a parade in my life. We were forced to march to the eating room with our arms folded and to eat in silence. I did not eat. The workhouse has a sweatshop that beats any in New York a mile. The convicts never get out of doors, never see the sky. Their faces are covered with boils and there are all kinds of evidences of tuberculosis. To look at them makes a man realize what the world really is. I think I would be doing a service if I could get some lawyer who is a member of the Wilmington Country club, where golf is played every Sunday, to be incarcerated there. He would see what these poor creatures have to contend with. I am the picture of health, but I do not think I could live in that jail for two months. If I went there for 30 days I would not eat the fare unless it was forced down me."

Sinclair further declared: "The man who designed that workhouse should be compelled to live in it until he dies from tuberculosis, a fate he would surely meet. It is impossible to ventilate the cells, and the convicts suffer as a result."

Before going to jail Sinclair declared that he would play tennis next Sunday just the same. He now thinks differently, however. "Since then," he said, "I have been on the prison stonepile. Besides, I have no time to go to jail."

A public meeting of the single-tax colonists will be held tonight at Arden, when the whole affair will be aired, with Sinclair as the spokesman.

Dr. Barnardo Hughey, of Frankfort and son-in-law, Mr. J. Roy Jamison, of New Brunswick, N. J., were the guests of Dr. R. M. Hughey and wife Thursday evening enroute to the East. Dr. Hughey expects to visit Philadelphia, New York and other cities and Mr. Jamison returns to his home.

PLEASURABLE AFFAIR.

An affair of much pleasure Wednesday evening was given by the employees of the S. S. Cockerill and Son Grocery store, in honor of a favorite traveling salesman, Mr. George A. Dyer and wife, of Columbus.

All the clerks and their wives, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Earl Barnett and Mrs. Mary Brownell, gathered at the I. O. O. F. hall for a supper served by Smith Brothers. It was an excellent supper and well served.

After the supper Misses Imogen and Juanita DeWees entertained with vocal and instrumental music and Mr. Dyer made a happy little speech in which he thanked his entertainers.

The party then wound up the evening at the picture shows.

ADNOID OPERATION.

Ruth Snyder, the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Snyder, was operated upon for adnoids by Dr. R. M. Hughey Thursday morning. Dr. Lucy Pine assisted in the operation.

FRACTURES ARM.

Elsie Carson, the little daughter of M. L. Carson, engineer of the Wonder Manufacturing Company, received a collar fracture of the left arm Wednesday, while skating on the pavement.

MUCH NEEDED RAIN WELCOMED BY ALL "DRYS" FALLS LAST NIGHT

For some time parts of Fayette county have been suffering a very serious drought, and in some instances crops have been damaged to some extent, but the down-pour yesterday and last night seems to have been general, and did thousands of dollars worth of good to the crops in Fayette county.

At this time the corn needs an abundance of rain to insure proper maturity. Potatoes have been cut short by the dry weather, but the recent rain will be of great benefit to the late potatoes and to all growing crops.

One farmer stated on the streets this morning that while the rain was a good one, another just like it would be none too much.

How to Win Success

SCHOOL IS THE beginning of business, and business is the greatest school in the world. Education begins with the child's first crying gasp at the atmosphere into which it is born, and it goes on to the last act of life.

The young man or woman who leaves school for business is still the same individual. The change consists only in taking up one set of tasks for another. The work that calls out the power has changed, but the call to the power itself is clear and distinct.

Business is an elastic word. It applies to the work for which a man receives, from some source outside of himself, payment for the use of energy which is aroused within him self. In its broadest sense, then, the word business may refer to the laborer who gives what seems to be only physical strength, and to the financier or scholar, who gives mental power. In either case the reward is for power set in motion.

It has been pointed out by Mr. Arnold Bennett that, in the popular sense of the word, it is impossible for all men to succeed. This is not an indictment against the word Success, but against our use of it.

Every human being can succeed in the one path that is open to him. That is, he can succeed in letting himself out, if he will, which means if he "wills it."

"What I am," said Sir Humphry Davy, "I have made myself."

In every man there is something which can be increased, something that lets out the real man and gives him another chance to show what is in him. It may mean only a good foot soldier instead of a general; it may mean a humble schoolmaster and not a Pestalozzi; it again may mean a man wise to his humble task of family government, and not at all wise in national government.

But there is need of all these kinds of men and each in relation to the man concerned spells success, for success is like life itself. A mouse is just as much alive as an elephant despite the difference in their bulks.

Real success is that which is developed by business, or by a man's daily work. It may be, on the one hand, the simple task of digging a ditch, or, on the other, the guiding of a national crisis. Some measure of a man is called out in both cases and a man can win success at either task.

II.

Now, if we use this word business as meaning a man's daily labor; it is a great word, and it shows clearly the direction whence success comes.

A man at work is not a slave. He is a free man. He serves the world, and his presence among other men is that of one bearing a part of the load. By his help the work of the world moves forward.

This applies as much to a boy running an elevator as it does to a man who carries on a large business. And the comfort it has for the boy in the elevator is this: When he has learned how to do his work in the very best way he is ready to move on to a better place. After all, it is no easy way to run an elevator in the best way.

School is so arranged that we move on from class to class. As we know we are making good. We do our lessons as they are given us, and the teacher keeps a record of how we do them. If the record shows up to his satisfaction he puts a check mark against our name to say that we are passed on.

The advantage of this is that some one, man or woman, is taking the trouble to see that we get our advancement when we are ready for it. No one ever gets our place. Our record belongs to us, and we stand or fall on the work we do.

Business, like school, is arranged so that we can go on from class to class. Now if we actually KEEP ON MOVING, if we keep on making a good record, some one will take notice of it and give us credit for it, or, if no such person is watching us, our record will, of itself, push us in to a better place.

Many people do not believe this but it is true. No one can trust anything with more faith than he can trust good work.

When a man stops getting on in life something is wrong. Either he has done his work only passably well, or, having mastered it, he is content to stay where he is.

In this respect men at work are like boys in the old swimming hole. They can either swim forward with a good strong stroke or they can just tread water. Now the business world is so full of men treading water that they often get in the way of the swimmer who wants to get somewhere.

When David Garrick tramped to London with Sam Johnson he had no money in his pocket. But he had something better, which was A THOUGHT IN HIS MIND. This thought kept urging him to become an actor. And he kept at it until he succeeded.

Garrick went into business on the basis of a partnership. He was one partner and his ambition was the other. A combination of this kind cannot be beaten, unless the partner himself is untrue to the other partner.

You have often heard about Opportunity knocking at a man's door. Some men wait just behind the door listening for Opportunity to come along. When it raises its hand to knock the man rushes out and says: "All ready. Show me what to do."

But other men—and a lot of them—are not just behind the door. They are in bed. When Opportunity knocks, they turn over and sing out: "Not so much noise. I'm resting."

And it is a truth worth remembering that when a man wants to rest Mr. Opportunity always turns away from the door and lets him have all the rest he wants.

Danish Rhubarb

Cut the rhubarb in small pieces and wash it. Boil for ten minutes and put enough sugar in it to make it sweet. After it has been boiled for ten minutes take the juice from it in a separate pan and put a few drops of strawberry juice in it. Put one-fourth cupful of cornstarch and one-half cupful of sugar or more, if not sweet enough. Then boil for five minutes. When cool and ready to serve, put one teaspoon of sugar and as much milk as you wish. This will make a dainty dish.

Raspberry and Currant Punch

A pleasant drink is made of raspberries and currants; a pint of the former to a quart of the latter. Bruise the fruit in a preserving kettle with a potato masher and pour over it two quarts cold water. Put the kettle over a moderate fire, where it will heat gradually. After it begins to boil remove the kettle from the fire, pour the contents into a jelly bag and let it drain through the bag into a large bowl. When it is clear and cool sweeten it and serve in little glasses with a little chilled ice. It is a dainty and healthful beverage.

Cedar Closet

Take the largest closet you can spare; clean it thoroughly. Now take old fashioned wooden curtain poles and place the first one sixteen inches from the ceiling. Then place another forty inches from the floor. Cut poles so that they fit tight and nail small piece of wood under each end to keep pole firm. Now put medium sized screw hooks in lower pole. Leave upper pole free to hang coats, etc., on coat hangers. Now take cedar paper; two dozen sheets will do, at 60 cents per dozen, two packages of brass headed tacks; begin at top and line the whole closet, overlapping each sheet. Line the door and floor with the paper. Tack paper so it comes three inches over jam of door inside. Blankets and all heavy things can be piled on the floor, with plenty of room to hang heavy garments on top and smaller things on bottom, this is positively nothproof.

Children who are too large for the regular tea chairs often find that the regular dining-room chairs are much too low. When this is the case a simple way to make the chair a trifle higher is to screw into the bottom of each leg one of the ordinary door bumpers.

A BASHFUL MAN'S LOVE STORY

How He Came to Win the Girl of His Choice.

"Henry Teale is a gawk!" I heard the words across the garden wall. I am Henry Teale. The speaker was Kate Harker, who was talking with her cousin, Marion Drowne.

"But he knows things," replied Marion.

"What matters it if he does. He is too bashful and reserved to tell what he knows. There isn't a girl in the place who doesn't dread to be left alone with him."

"Don't you think some of them might overcome their aversion if he should suddenly become wealthy?"

"I don't think I could stand him if he were worth—"

I was lying in a hammock in the back yard reading. I got up and went into the house, but as this scrap of conversation occupied but a few moments I could not very well avoid hearing it. To do myself justice, I did not wish to hear myself discussed. Kate Harker's remarks were intensely painful to me, so painful that I resolved to leave the place of my birth and go forth into the great world, hoping to forget them.

I did not forget them, but I had the sensitiveness knocked out of me very quickly. I made money, made it out of nothing, and to do this I was obliged to master my feelings. "To those who have shall be given," and by the death of an aunt I inherited a fortune. I owned the little tumbledown house with the acre of ground about it in which I had lived with my mother, and since she was no longer living I resolved to go back and dispose of it. The day after my arrival I rigged a hammock in the back yard and lay down in it with a cigar and a book. Pretty soon I heard voices over the wall.

"Have you seen him?"

"Yes; I was peeping through the blinds when he came."

I recognized the first voice as that of Marion, the second as that of Kate. This was all I heard, for the two girls passed out of hearing.

In the evening I called on my neighbor, Kate Harker, received me as if I were her oldest and best friend, making no attempt to conceal the favor I had found in her eyes since she had pronounced me a gawk. Marion was very reserved. Indeed, had I been as unsophisticated as when I had heard her say "But he knows things!" I should have concluded that she had turned against me. But a man can't make money without gaining a knowledge of human nature. I suspected that Marion now held aloof from a feeling that since I had become a desirable "catch" it was not her place to court me.

"You young ladies must be more careful as to your words," I said. "Before I went away I overheard a scrap of conversation with regard to me that gave me great pain."

Both looked at me uneasily.

"You two were talking in the garden. One said, 'He's a gawk,' the other, 'But he knows things!'"

The two girls looked at each other inquiringly.

"I remember no such conversation," said Kate. Marion was silent.

"Do you, Marion?" I asked.

"No, but candor compels me to say that at that time the criticisms were just."

"The first surely was, though I am not so certain about the second. But the justness of it all could have no effect on a boy of nineteen. I have for years felt harshly toward the one who called me a gawk and kindly to her who said 'But he knows things!'"

"Then you recognized their voices," said Kate, palling slightly. "Tell us who called you a gawk."

"I may have attributed the remark to the wrong girl, but to whomsoever I tossed this pin let her stand accused."

Taking a pearl pin from my scarf, I tossed it to Marion.

The distress on Marion's face was painful to see. Kate blushed, and the guilty look on her face was equally distressing. She struggled with herself to take the blame that she knew belonged to her, but without success. I waited to see if Marion would place it where it belonged, but she did not. She handed my pin back to me.

"Keep it as a token that you are forgiven," I said.

But she was resolute, and I at last placed the jewel again in my scarf.

I waited a week, leaving the girls free, the one to assume her just burden, the other to place it upon her friend. I paid Kate marked attention and treated Marion with indifference. I had learned selfishness myself, but admired that sense of honor which prevented Marion from throwing the blame on Kate. Meanwhile I took satisfaction in Marion's distress. The fact of having called me a gawk was nothing to her discredit. I knew that it was the loss of my favor that pained her.

"Marion," I said one day, "have you repented having called me a gawk?"

She gave me no reply.

"Well, you had better dismiss the matter from your mind. In the first place, I was not only a gawk, but a ninny. In the second, it was not you who spoke the word, but Kate. In the third, I love you and want you to go back with me as my wife."

So indignant was she at the pain I had given her that she kept me waiting a year and then only consented on condition that I apologize.

"A horse is man's truest friend," said the lover of animals.

"He's more like a relation than a friend," replied Farmer Cornstossel. "He makes me think of my boy Josh; allus ready to eat an' liable to kick if you put him to work."—Washington Star.

FORMER WASHINGTON FOLKS IN BIG AUTO SMASHUP COLLIDED WITH STREET CAR

Dr. F. L. Wilson, Now of South Solon, in Wreck

NO ONE SERIOUSLY INJURED

Big Machine Skidded Directly Into Moving Car

Dr. F. L. Wilson, formerly of this city, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shockley and Al Curry, all of South Solon, had a close call from death in Springfield Wednesday evening when Shockley's automobile skidded into a street car.

Today's Springfield Sun gives the following account of the accident:

When on East High street, near Belmont avenue, shortly before 6 o'clock last evening, a large touring car driven by Frank Shockley, of South Solon, began to skid and turning around was side-swiped by car No. 118 of the Springfield Street Railway lines, the accident taking place near the corner of High and Hubert streets. The machine was badly wrecked and the glass front of the street car was broken by the impact, but luckily none of the occupants of the car were hurt seriously.

In the machine at the time of the accident, besides Mr. Shockley were his wife and little baby, while in the rear seat was Dr. T. L. Wilson and Al Curry, all being from South Solon. Mr. Shockley was thrown out and bruised while Dr. Wilson had his back wrenched and leg bruised.

Motorman Albert Knott of the street car, was slightly cut by flying glass, but he was able to continue his run. Dr. H. B. Martin, a company physician, was called and attended the injured.

The automobile was going east on High street at the time, while the car was going west. According to several bystanders the driver attempted to turn out of the car tracks and in so doing the machine began to skid as Shockley lost control. The street car was coming along at a rapid rate and as the rails were wet the car could not be checked to avoid the accident.

After turning once around the auto and car came together, and as Wilson was sitting on the side next to the car he was the most seriously hurt, although his injuries were slight. Shockley was hurled out but the rest of the occupants remained in the auto.

All the spokes of the rear wheels were broken out, while the frame was ruined by the collision. The car was taken to a local garage.

Dr. Wilson is the son of ex-Sheriff S. O. Wilson and his wife is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Marshall of this city.

BOOSTING

our city is best done by every man making his business the very best. This will double or triple each business and the number of its employees. Such increase would boost our city as nothing else could. For instance: The Buckeye State Building and Loan Company, Rankin building, 22 West Gay street, Columbus, Ohio, is one of the best in its line. Hence its great growth. Assets $4,800,000. It pays 5 per cent. on time deposits.

Three Nations Signed Two Arbitration Pacts

TWO ARBITRATION PACTS ARE SIGNED

United States, England and France Set World Example.

Washington, Aug. 3.—The general arbitration treaties between the United States, Great Britain and France, constituting the most advanced step ever taken in the family of nations for the peaceful settlement of disputes, were signed today. Paris and Washington being the scenes of the conclusion of the negotiations.

Secretary Knox signed the British and French treaties in the east room of the White House. On behalf of the British government, Ambassador Bryce signed the documents. Earlier in the day, at Paris, Ambassador Jusserand signed the French treaty.

The arbitration treaties really found their inception in what at the time was regarded as a casual utterance of President Taft at a dinner of the American Society for Judicial Settlement of International Disputes in this city Dec. 18 last. On that occasion the president declared he saw no reason why the ancient tradition should be preserved that questions affecting the vital interest and honor of nations could not be arbitrated; that in his opinion these questions were as susceptible of dispassionate arbitration as any other international issues.

MORGAN'S FAIR LIBRARIAN.

Miss Belle De Costa Green an Authority on Rare Books.

Wherever there is an auction sale of rare books or valuable engravings one sees in the group of bibliophiles, college professors, curators of museums and collectors who fill the gallery the slight, girlish figure of Miss Belle Green, librarian for J. Pierpont Morgan. Representing one of the richest men in the world and perhaps the most persistent and determined collector of them all, is no sinecure for an experienced man, not to speak of a girl who is still in her twenties. Her competitors are men like Joseph E. Widener of Philadelphia, Walter Hill, the dealer from Chicago; Herbert Putnam, librarian of congress; George D. Smith, who, representing Henry E. Huntington, secured the Gutenberg Bible for $50,000.

Miss Green has been in charge of Mr. Morgan's library for the past six years. She is its guardian and its possessor in every sense and holds the key against all comers, even Mr. Morgan's own family, unless that gentleman himself is present. Before becoming Mr. Morgan's librarian Miss Green spent several years in studying rare books, and there is no one of her own sex who equals her in judging their values. She lives with her mother in a studio apartment within a stone's throw of her daily work.—Metropolitan Magazine.

Schley Tells Of Loans Made

Carried T. C. & I. For $40,000,000 During Panic of 1907.

New York, Aug. 3.—Grant B. Schley left his sick bed to tell the steel probes how his firm—Moore & Schley—was compelled to sell to the steel trust its holdings of Tennessee Coal and Iron stock. He said he carried $40,000,000 of loans through the panic of 1907.

Colonel Oliver Payne, who initiated the movement to have the steel trust absorb the T. C. & I., was one of the firm's largest creditors, having loaned them $7,000,000. Schley was asked if L. C. Hanna did not offer cash to tide the firm over and prevent the sale of T. C. & I., but the witness could not remember any specific offer of assistance.

Half a Ton of Honey. Long ago, 150 years in fact, a way-side tavern was built in Massachusetts. By and by some wild bees, looking for a place to settle down in, swarmed into the garret. There they lived and stored honey, and there other bees set up housekeeping until there were fifty families. The people downstairs did not bother them, and so the bees lived happily and put aside honey for the rainy day that never came until a short time ago. Then the hotel was sold and torn down, and the wreckers found there was honey enough in the garret to feed a whole Sunday school. There was 1,000 pounds of it.

Ends His Life In Stateroom

Sandusky Boat Owner Shoots Himself For Unknown Reason.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 3.—E. E. Koch, owner of the steamer Annie Laurie of Sandusky, committed suicide in his stateroom on the boat by shooting himself through the head.

Mr. Koch accompanied the boat, laden with logs, to Cleveland. He talked with the captain and members of the crew as the vessel moved the river. When the boat docked opposite the Central furnace the captain went to look for Mr. Koch and found him in his cabin dead. A revolver was found on the floor beside him.

No reason for the suicide is known to the captain or crew, all of whom said that Mr. Koch was cheerful all through the trip.

Dies After Terrorizing Town.

Dayton, O., Aug. 3.—Patrons of the Staley House at New Carlisle were driven from their rooms by a maniac armed with a butcherknife. Charles Staley, a barber, crazed with drink, seized the knife and sought the lives of his own family and the patrons as well. People fled in terror and it was some time before Staley was overpowered and disarmed. He resisted arrest and slashed two officers before subdued. He died an hour later in convulsions.

Marietta Has Murder Mystery

Bodies of Missing Girls Found in Muskingum River.

Marietta, O., Aug. 3.—Mystery surrounds the death of Ella Mooney, 16, and Mary McCamie, 19, whose bodies were found in the Muskingum river. Monday evening the young women secured a boat and rowed up the river. Nothing more was heard of them until the boat was found tied to a barge. It contained nothing but the purses the girls carried when they left their homes.

Whether they carried out a suicide pact or were murdered and their bodies thrown into the river has not been determined by the police. There are no marks of violence.

RIDING THE BELLS.

Spectacular Feats of the Daring Ringers of Saville.

The ringing of a bell is not, as a rule, a performance particularly trying to the nerves, but there is one set of bell ringers the members of which must know no fear, for a moment of tremor would in all probability be for them the moment of death. They are the bell ringers of the Girarda, in Saville.

When the city is to make merry on feast days the ringers climb to the belfry, and then by the aid of a rope and steps cut in the wall of the tower each mounts to the bell he is to ring and stands astride the shoulder of the brazen monster. Then he presses the bell with his feet, holding on the cross-piece on which the mass of metal is swung.

Gradually the great bell sways to the muscular movement of the man astride it until it acquires a momentum that swings the hammer, first gently and then with increasing force as the sweep of the bell widens until the air is trembling from the giant blows that strike the massive sides of the monster.

The mere vibration of the atmosphere as the huge bells ring out would be enough to make an unpracticed ringer turn dizzy and fall from his perch. But this is not all, for many bells are ringing in the belfry at the same time in obedience to the movements of their riders, and the din is deafening.

Notwithstanding all this, the riders bend and rise and fall with the action of the bells, now appearing to the observer from below to be in a horizontal position as the bell reaches the limit of its swing and again riding gracefully to an upright position as the monster sways backward with another thundering note.

The most extraordinary part of the daring performance is the sight of a bell ringer calmly swaying the bell while it hangs far out of the belfry over the city, for the outward swing sends the counterpoise with the ringer into space beyond the arch.—Success Magazine.

Fruit Salad

Line a wafer box with lettuce leaves and fill with mixed fruits. For a dressing make a white sauce with cream, add three tablespoonsful of lemon juice, and before taking from the fire stir in the yolks of two eggs beaten with a quarter of a cupful of sugar. Add salt and ground mace.

Ice Cream Cases

Make three cornered cases of sugar wafers, joining them with icing. Half fill them with vanilla ice cream add a tablespoonful of preserved fruit and top with whipped cream and sugar roses. An oblong box may also be made of the wafers.

SHARPENING SCISSORS.

To sharpen scissors well and quickly, saw the blades on the neck of a glass bottle as if you were trying to cut it off. This will sharpen the blunt end of scissor blades.

INDUSTRIOUS.

"Why are you hanging around the mouth of that pitcher?" "Merely professional interest. I'm taking a night course in dentistry and I thought I'd merely look into every mouth I see."

Oldest Man in the World.

Jose Gaudaloupe Aleida of Jalostotan, state of Jalisco, Mexico, is said to be the oldest man in the world. The record of his birth as contained in the archives of the parish church shows that he was born in 1770, which makes him 139 years old. He is in good physical condition.

Women and Mountaineering.

One of the chief difficulties in a woman's undertaking an expedition in mountain climbing is that, what ever her experience, every man believes that he knows better what should be done than she.—Harper's Magazine.

Feminine Lack of Logic.

Tell a wife that men are selfish, she will readily acquiesce. But tell that same woman that by spoiling her boys—whether in the nursery or at school or university—she is sowing the seeds of egotism, she will give an emphatic denial.

Modern Advice.

"My dear," said a fond mother, "never marry a man for his money. Nowadays it is much easier to play bridge whilst for it."—Detroit Free Press.

To Shrink White Goods

Leave the goods in the folds just as you buy it. Put it in a tub with enough warm water to cover it and let it stand for three or four hours. Then hang it on a line without wringing it and let it drip until it is thoroughly dry. But unfold it a little so it won't take too long. Then press it with a hot iron.

Combination Salad

Tomato, Walnut, and Celery Salad. —Cut rounds from stem ends of peeled tomatoes. Scoop out seeds, leaving as much tomato as possible. Chop celery fine; cut pickled walnuts small; mix with mayonnaise and fill tomatoes with mixture. Garnish with parsley and lemon.

CAPTURES BIG TARANTULA NARROWLY ESCAPED BITE WAS HIDDEN IN BANANAS

Groceryman Os McLellan was given quite a surprise this morning while cutting bananas from a bunch in his store, when he spied an enormous tarantula hidden in the bunch next to the stem, and ready to spring out upon him.

Mr. McLellan quickly secured a glass jar and forced the ugly creature into it and the lid was put on, leaving the tarantula a prisoner. The big spider measures over five inches from the tips of its legs, and is one of the most vicious looking of its kind. Mr. McLellan's attention was attracted to the creature by a peculiar noise made, and ascertained afterward that he had severed one of its legs, causing it to set up a cry of protest.

The tarantula was protecting a web filled with eggs, and clung to the ball, carrying it into the jar with it. The whole family may be seen now in Mr. McLellan's show window, the tarantula carefully guarding the precious ball of eggs.

How he escaped being bitten by the ugly spider, is a puzzle to Mr. McLellan.

Mortgages Filed Outnumber Deeds

The real estate business was very quiet for the month of July, but the number of mortgages issued indicates greater activity in that line than in the real estate transfers, for 39 mortgages have been filed and 36 transfers of real estate.

However the month was not as bad as the same month last year, when 43 mortgages and 29 deeds were recorded. Now the same month in the year 1909 shows 27 mortgages and 30 deeds recorded. The year 1908 shows 22 mortgages and 46 deeds.

For the year ending June 30th, 530 mortgages were recorded and 699 deeds. Perhaps when the year comes to an end, the showing this year will be a good one after all.

THIRTY YEARS TOGETHER.

Thirty years of association—think of it. How the merit of a good thing stands out in that time—or the worthlessness of a bad one. So there's no guesswork in this evidence of Thos. Ariss, Concord, Mich., who writes: "I have used Dr. King's New Discovery for 30 years, and its the best cough and cold cure I ever used." Once it finds entrance in a home you can't pry it out. Many families have used it forty years. It's the most infallible throat and lung medicine on earth. Unequaled for lagrippe, asthma, hay-fever, croup, quinsy or sore lungs. Price 50c, $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by Blackmer & Tanquary.

Only the Truth.

A virtue carried to excess may be come ridiculous. To such action one may well preach, "Be temperate in all things," even in virtue! Amelia Ople, the English authoress, was not content with any half measures, as is shown in a letter from her, quoted in "Quaker Pictures," by Wilfred Whittier. Mrs. Ople's course of conduct is to be respected as proceeding from her conscientious nature, but fiction-readers may congratulate themselves that her opinions are not universal.

Before she became a Quaker she wrote fiction. After her conversion she was asked to contribute a story to a magazine. Her answer to the editor ran as follows:

"Thou knowest, or ought to know, that since I became a Friend I am not free to write what is called to make a story. I will write a fact for thy perusal, or any little matter of history or truth, or a poem if thou wishest, but I must not lie and say such and such a thing took place when it did not."

Remedy for Choking.

"Raising the left arm as high as you can will relieve choking much more rapidly than the act of thumping one's back," said a physician, "and it is well that every one should know it, for often a person gets choked while eating where there is no one near to thump him. Very frequently at meals and when they are at play, children get choked while eating, and the customary manner of relieving them is to slap them sharply on the back. The effect of this is to set the obstruction free. The same thing can be brought about by raising the left hand of the child as high as possible, and the relief comes much more quickly. In happenings of this kind there should be no alarm, for if the child sees that older persons or parents get excited the effect is bad. The best thing is to tell the child to raise its left arm, and immediately the difficulty passes away."

New England and Napoleon.

The hostility of New Englanders to the first Napoleon was sincere and deep. A remarkable instance of this feeling is to be found in the manner in which the townsmen of Boston received the news of his first abdication. The incident has been brought to notice through an interesting exhibit in the historical collections of the public library of that city. It is a ticket admitting the bearer to a "solemn festival at the Stone chapel, in commemoration of the goodness of God in delivering the Christian world from military despotism. Boston, June 1814."

SO HEAVY IS THE DEMAND Commodious Hodson Hospital PROVES TOO SMALL FOR NEEDS

It will undoubtedly be as much of a surprise to the general public as it was to THE HERALD reporter to learn this morning that the Hodson hospital is being taxed to its fullest extent to accommodate incoming patients.

Commodious as it was first deemed and fitted for every emergency, already it is apparent that the present hospital will some day be the nucleus for a far larger and more spacious building. Cheerful, airy and inviting in its immaculate cleanliness, with full hospital equipment and the superior nursing and care that only great expense can secure in the home, it is no wonder that many are anxious to secure its benefits in case of accidents, operations or illnesses.

Since the opening of the hospital there have been few times that it has not accommodated a number of patients, but the present condition emphasizes the fact that as the advantages of hospital care become more widely recognized there will be more and more demand for its accommodations.

The hospital nurses have given up their quarters in the hospital and are also being cared for at Dr. Hodson's own home, which is so conveniently near.

It means much to the hospital that both Dr. and Mrs. Hodson are so ready to throw open their own home and take care of the "overflow." Otherwise there would be disappointment and perhaps even more serious inconvenience. The case of Thomas McCoy, of Jackson, who was so badly injured and taken to the hospital this morning, a "stranger in a strange land," demonstrates anew what a hospital means to the community and hardly a day passes but some one voices the now trite remark, "What did we do before we had a hospital?"

Short as has been the time since its opening the institution has proved a boon to this community and removed from others the fear of illness which might be uncared for and lonely without its open doors.

Their Inquests Covered a Wide Variety of Subjects.

It has been supposed and legal historians have told us that the office of coroner was originally instituted by King Alfred with that of the sheriff, both being designed to aid in keeping the peace when the earls gave up the wardships of the county. The legal historians are wrong, according to Dr. F. J. Waldo of the British Medical-Legal society, who has traced the history of the coroner and his ancient office as far back as the year 1191.

In early days the coroner had a wider and more general jurisdiction than he now enjoys. Coroners were wont to "hold their views" not only upon deaths where an investigation was considered necessary, but also upon various serious crimes which were treated as occasions for the raising of revenue for the crown. The mission of the coroner to the state was not alone to investigate crimes and bring felons to justice. He superintended the forfeiture of money and personal property by criminals to the crown, for the recording of which he was responsible. These forfeitures were not confined in cases of violence and death to the property of the person who could be held directly responsible, but included animals and instruments to which loss of human life under any circumstances might be traceable.—New York World.

Negro Murderer Held in Chillicothe

Word has been received that Clarence Johnson, a negro, who was arrested in Chillicothe about the middle of July for being implicated in a railway office robbery, is wanted for the murder of Charles Sams in Cincinnati, and will be taken there for trial.

Johnson is at present in the Point Pleasant jail, where he was taken soon after his arrest in Chillicothe.

ATTACK LIKE TIGERS.

In fighting to keep the blood pure the white corpuscles attack disease germs like tigers. But often germs multiply so fast the little fighters are overcome. Then see pimples, boils, eczema, salt-rheum and sores multiply and strength and appetite fail. ## C. A. & C. GENERAL AGENT Promised Best Equipment FOR THE ELKS' EXCURSION

The Antlered Herd is Very Enthusiastic Over Project

LODGE MEETING FRIDAY NIGHT

Big Smoker and Victrola Concert by Social Session Committee

Mr. George E. Roller, general excursion agent of Buckeye Lake, was in this city yesterday completing arrangements for the Elks' big excursion to beautiful Buckeye Lake on Wednesday, September 6th, when several thousand persons are expected to enjoy the day of their lives.

The Master Mechanic of the C. A. & C. has promised the best equipment on the road for the excursion, and the committee in charge will limit the number of tickets so that all may be comfortably taken care of, tickets being sold in advance.

Great enthusiasm prevails among the Elks, who propose to make this successor to the Sunday School excursion of former years, a grand success. The Social session committee will entertain the entire lodge to a big smoker and victrola concert Friday night, and more details of the big event will be taken up, as every man wishes to make the excursion an unprecedented success.

Everything favors the excursion, and the fact that it will be conducted without rowdyism appeals to the masses, insuring a most liberal patronage. It will be a holiday in Fayette county.

New Book Law Will Be Enforced

Before the state commission ruled that book companies can't sell their books for more than 60 per cent of the list price, the companies had been allowed to sell for not more than 75 per cent. Many of the so-called independent companies said they couldn't stand the cut and, therefore, wouldn't relist their books this year for another five-year period.

But last year the American Book company relisted all its books in Ohio at a time when the companies were permitted to sell at 75 per cent of list price.

Doubts Right to Relist.

The state commission doubts whether the American School Book company had a legal right to relist its books last year before the expiration of the five-year period for which they had been listed. Attorney General Hogan has been asked to rule on this point. If he rules in favor of the company it will have an immense advantage over its competitors, who couldn't come in to compete unless they cut their list prices to 60 per cent. If Hogan holds the company had no right to relist its books last year the state commission can compel it, along with the other companies, to sell its books at 60 per cent.

To Wash Your Sweater

Wash in a tubful of luke warm water and naphtha soap. Do not rub, but just squeeze in the hands. Rinse thoroughly in several waters. Place the sweater in a pillow slip and hang the slip on the line. In the evening take in and spread on a sheet on the floor. In the morning just shake out the sweater and it will not have shrunk or pulled away since the health of the entire body must needs be increased by keeping the pores open and active.

Meal Help

To preserve beef steak and chops, saturate a piece of thin white cloth in white wine vinegar. Place meat on a plate, first wetting platter with a little of the vinegar, then spread cloth over meat. In this way meat can be kept without ice for two days, by moistening the cloth with vinegar when it begins to dry. The meat will not taste of the vinegar.

Spanish Onion Soup

Spanish Onion Soup—Chop fine five onions and fry brown in butter, adding a teaspoonful of sugar. When brown pour over eight cups of hot beef stock. Add a bay leaf, half a dozen peppercorns, and a tablespoonful of minced parsley. Simmer fifteen minutes, strain, and serve with dice of fried or toasted bread.

Creamed Calf Brains

This dish is especially good. Parboil calves' brains, chop fine, mix with one cupful of cold cooked peas seasoned. Make a sauce of one cupful of sweet milk, one-half cupful of cream, one level teaspoonful each of salt and pepper. Add the peas and calves' brains. Heat an omelet over slices of crisp toast.

Rhubarb Cream

Cut tender rhubarb in inch lengths without peeling. Cook in a double boiler without adding any water. Pass through a sieve. To each teaspoonful of pulp add one-half cup of sugar. Set on ice and when very cold stir in a cupful of thick whipped cream. Serve in sherbet cups as cold as possible.

Cherry Salad.

Wash and stone one pint of large cherries. Be careful to bruise the fruit as little as possible. Place in each cherry a hazel nut kernel to preserve the form; chill, arrange in little heart leaves of lettuce and pour over a cream mayonnaise.

Baked Bananas

Slice in half lengthwise five perfect bananas from from skin. Bake for ten minutes. Remove to a hot plate and pour over them one cupful of sweetened pineapple juice.

White Lemonade

Grate rinds of three lemons in a bowl, add the juice with three cups sugar, add one-half pint white wine, and, while stirring constantly, two quarts fresh boiling milk; strain carefully and when cool set on ice.

Raspberry Jelly

Crush the raspberries and strain through a wet cloth, add an equal measure of sugar and boil for ten to twenty minutes.

An Open Congratulation.

W. S. Gilbert does not retain all of his humor for use in his librettos.

In the early days of his success when Gilbert and Sullivan were considered by managers as the "sure winners" in the comic-opera field, a young woman who was a member of one of the "Pinafore" companies wrote to Gilbert telling him of her approaching marriage with a young man of good position and family. Gilbert congratulated the young woman and expressed the hope that her future might be prosperous and happy.

Only a little more than a month passed, and another letter from the same girl reached him, in which she stated that her engagement with the young man had been broken, and that she had accepted another suitor.

He replied that he had every confidence in her judgment and again expressed his hearty wishes for her welfare.

It was almost two months after that Gilbert received a third letter from the same girl, who informed him that young Lord had proposed and that she had accepted him, after breaking her engagement with No. 2. Gilbert's humor could no longer withstand the temptation, and he wrote "I desire to congratulate you on your approaching marriage with"

Here he placed an asterisk, and in a footnote added, "Here insert the name of the happy man."—Tit-Bits.

"And what has he turned out to be?"
"A subway guard."

THE BRANDY SET.

Vanderbilt Tells a Story to Illustrate Roulette Chances.

"I dined with W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., on his return from Monte Carlo, at the Cafe de Paris," said a California millionaire.

"Mr. Vanderbilt declared that there was one sure way to get rich by gambling at Monte Carlo. That was to build a second casino there and run it on the present casino's lines. He said that in roulette playing the chances against you were quite unfair. You were in the hopeless position of the man who made the brandy bet."

"This man was met by a friend, who said:

"What makes you look so blue?" "Finn," the man replied, "has bet me a ten-spot that he can drink a quart of brandy in a day without staggering."

"And you look blue! Why," cried the friend—"why, man, you've got a dead certainty. Finn's bound to lose. He can't take two drinks without staggering scandalous."

"But the duffer," replied the other, "has taken the bottle to bed with him."

Overfeeding.

"Men drunk from liquor and men drunk from overeating are most susceptible to pneumonia and die of it," said a Chicago health commissioner in an address. "The majority of cases of pneumonia are of patients who contracted the disease after a drunken debauch or who were drunk from overfeeding," the commissioner continued. "People drunk from overfeeding, I think, are almost as immoral as those who stupefy themselves with liquors. The effects of pneumonia in such patients are much the same."

How to Shake Hands.

Lady Violet Greville is trying to make a warm handclasp and hearty handshake popular. She is very glad, she says, that the "elbow shake" is going out of fashion. Who invented the elbow shake, she says, she does not know, but it is senseless, devoid of grace, with no charm or meaning. It used to be part of a boy's or girl's education to learn the graceful curve of the elbow that was necessary when hands were shaken.

Cod Liver Oil for Plants.

A woman who owns two splendid-looking plants which keep green and vigorously though their habitat is an apartment, says that she attributes their good health entirely to an occasional dose of cod liver oil. She has found a large spoonful of this medicine, from time to time, better than any of the fertilizers usually advised, and not more expensive.

Well-Trained Memory.

"I do not recall anything on that point," said the witness. "Oh, you don't?" sneered the lawyer. "You'd better take memory lessons." "Excuse me," rejoined the witness suavely, "but my memory has been trained by one of the highest-priced lawyers in the business."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

A Swedish Custom.

The Swedes have a custom at Christmas time of decorating a pet lamb with red ribbons and bells, then loading it with gifts for the family. The lamb is turned loose in the house, and each person attempts to catch it and find his or her gift.

Mortgage on a Cat.

A mortgage on a cat is not often heard of. However, the other day there was filed in the recorder's office a chattel mortgage the consideration of which was $20. The property on which the money was secured was described as a "cat called John."—Columbus Dispatch.

Not Quite Clear.

"But," queried the dear girl's father, "do you earn enough to support two?" "Two!" echoed the would-be son-in-law in surprise. "Say, I only asked for your daughter. Are you going to try and ring her mother in on me, too?"

Thinking One's Self Old.

If at 30 you expect to be an old man or woman, at 55 you will be one, because the mind makes the material correspondence of whatever it sets itself permanently upon.—Health Record.

In the Sunset of Life.

We all find life is very short, but if we give the last ten years of our lives in solving the innumerable problems that are around us, we shall feel the better for it wherever we go afterward.—Countess of Warwick.

Household Hints

Tennis shoes make very comfortable footgear for the kitchen worker. Owing to the rubber soles the feet will not get wet when mopping or scrubbing a floor. No woman wants to wear a nice pair of leather shoes in the kitchen, and tennis shoes are neater in appearance than old leather shoes.

If the family are contemplating the rearranging of their home no better improvement could be imagined than the addition of a secluded piazza opening off the kitchen where much of the work can be done. Three sides of this piazza should be exposed to the open air in order to admit all possible breezes; and if it is inclosed by a lattice-work or vines it will be completely sheltered from observation. To make the piazza kitchen ideal the drain pipes and water supply should be close at hand, and with suitable arrangements the washing and ironing can be done there.

Handkerchief Neckwear

Many of the smart styles of summer neckwear may be copied by the use of handkerchiefs, and for those who have a talent for the needle the task is quite simple.

The very sheer handkerchiefs with the fine scalloped buttonhole edge make pretty sailor collars, and an extra handkerchief can be used for the stylish turnback cuffs.

Another style of handkerchief which can be converted into pretty neck accessories is the one with the plain colored border.

A dark blue linen border with a touch of red makes a pretty combination. The sheer cross barred handkerchiefs are lovely for the wide square collars and cuffs, while the handkerchiefs with cross bar lines in color are also pretty when tastefully used.

Heat your knife before cutting hard soap.

Wet a cloth with a bit of soda on it and clean up the grease spots on your kitchen floor.

Jelly from berries picked wet is almost sure to mold, and doesn't set right. Try to pick them dry.

Put a few grains of rice in your salt shakers. They will break the lumps, gather the moisture and make the salt come out freely.

Glue pieces of felt or pieces of old rubbers to the bottom of the chair legs, and there will be no scratched floors and less noise.

An emergency glue may be made of rice. Boil a handful of rice in water until it is a thick fine paste. Very good for pasting white paper.

In making cake with fruit in it, beef suet and butter, half and half is better than all butter. Lard and beef suet also give good results.

When a ham or smoked tongue has been boiled, try plunging it in cold water as soon as removed from the fire; this will make the skin come off easily and smoothly.

A handy way to remove pies and cakes from a hot oven is to use a common shingle. Cut away the thick end into the shape of a handle. Bore a hole in it and keep the shingle hanging behind the stove.

If you have some work to do in the sun and have no sunbonnet, take a piece of paper; pin it together behind, run a string over the top and through a slit at each side, and tie it under the chin. It may rattle a good deal but may save you a headache.

Getting Along with People.

Getting along with people is a valuable trait to cultivate. First of all be amiable and forgiving; do not hear all that is said, never repeat anything and be willing to be pleased while doing your part.

Major Kennon Builds Famous Road with Aid of Band.

Major L. W. V. Kennon, now commanding a battalion of the Tenth Infantry, U. S. A., in building the famous Benguet road through the mountains of Northern Luzon, Philippine Islands, accomplished a feat, called humanly impossible. It took music, money and a mongrel army of 4,000 men to do it, but Benguet road stands to-day one of the remarkable highways of the world. Major Kennon's army of 4,000 road builders did not like to work; when they did it was with slow, sluggish movement.

One day Major Kennon assembled his band, made up of men of all nations, and ordered it to move quietly and secretly to a place where several hundred Filipinos were engaged in drilling holes in the canyon walls, and play a favorite oriental air. Instantly the Filipinos caught the spirit of the music and began to beat their drills against the rock in rhythm.

The band followed the Filipinos along the way and played wherever they worked. From laborers worth about 10 cents a day they developed into musical machines that worked to drum beats. Major Kennon insists that his band saved the Philippine Government thousands of dollars.

Starting an Endless Chain.

Both father and mother struggled valiantly to teach Effie to repeat the letter "A." The child emphatically refused to pronounce the first letter of the alphabet, and after many vain efforts the father retired from the fight discouraged. The mother took the little girl on her lap and pleaded with her affectionately.

"Dearie, why don't you learn to say 'A'?" she asked.

"Because, mamma," explained Effie, "des as soon as I say 'A' you an' papa will want me to say 'B.'"

Destiny.

The young woman who had been playing in stock for two years looked with interest at the serious faces of the New York critics on a first night. "It seems different here," she remarked. "How?" I asked. "The critic in our town had been a reporter and they were going to fire him. But the editor thought of the theatres, and said: 'Let him be a dramatic critic. It doesn't take any brains to write about plays.'"

Luxuries.

Luxuries are those possessions which are enjoyed chiefly and almost solely because other people do not have them. All other possessions are necessities. If every one were a Standard Oil magnate, it would be an insufferable bore, and it is getting to be almost that anyway. Luxuries do not connote comfort. On the contrary, they connote litter, indigestion, gout and lassitude. Comfort comes only from necessities.—Life.

MADGE.

Madge Craven was a little hard to please. She loved her mother and she loved her garden, she loved her horses and she loved herself. Which of the four commanded most of her affection it is difficult to say.

Providence had endowed her with rare gifts and rich possessions, and she had made good use of them. Tall, shapely, tolerant and stately, she knew her worth, and was not at all disposed to undervalue it.

It happened in the year of grace nineteen hundred and as many as you please, that a climax was arrived at. Madge was then 26. Nineteen of her admirers found consolation. Seven were left. I knew them all. They also all knew me. I sometimes wish they had not. Other people's love affairs are apt to be boring, and it is difficult to say exactly the right thing in seven cases. I did my best, of course. I told Phil Harte to make a little more of Madge's mother. I told Ben Symms to learn to ride. I told Elijah Hopkins he should change his name. I told the other four much that was good for them, and trust that they appreciated it.

No matters ran. The countryside decided it was time Madge married. Mrs. S. declared that if she didn't she might lose her chances, and chances, added Mrs. S., don't come again. It was rumored she had taken hers.

The favorite was Adam Bleeze. He asked for my advice. I gave it to him. "Girl and woman, I have known Madge Craven five and twenty years," I said, "and she will please herself"—which, in plain fact, she did.

Adam worked hard. He made good practice with her mother, stormed her garden, cultivated horses, danced attendance on her, and, to all appearances, did well. The countryside proclaimed him victor. But!—But is an awkward word; it throws one back upon one's haunches—he made no progress.

Now it fell upon a certain summer's day that Adam came to me and said: "Look here, old man, I wish you would put in a good word for me with Madge. She thinks a lot of you."

I promised him I would, and meant to wait my opportunity. It came sooner than I had expected, for it fell upon the very day that Madge rode over in the morning. She looked well. She always did, and in her riding habit specially well. I may have noticed it. "I have been thinking about you," I said, after the usual greetings. "You are very kind. And what have you been thinking?" "That it's time you married." "So it is!" said Madge. "That's why I have called. I have one for some advice."

"I shall be happy to give you what I can," said I.

"Yes, I know," said Madge. "You give a lot, and you take none. That's you all over."

She said this rather sharply. I looked up. "Hello," thought I, "in fighting trim. All right."

"If you had not called on me," I said, "I should have called on you."

"It's about time you did," said Madge.

"As an ambassador," said I, "on whose behalf?" said Madge. "A friend of mine is very fond of you."

"There's nothing new in that," said Madge. "All your friends are."

This was quite true, but the directness of it was a little disconcerting.

"Well, which was it?" said Madge, describing little circles on the lawn with the handle of her whip.

I pleaded Adam's cause. I thought I pleaded well, but did not make much progress.

"He is very nice!" said Madge, at last.

"What more do you want?" I asked. "I want more brains!" said Madge.

"You mean he does?" said I, Madge laughed, and our eyes met.

It was not the first time they had met by any means. Nor is it likely it will be the last. Madge looks you in the face frankly and fearlessly. Her eyes are not accustomed to defeat. But this time they fell—fell suddenly and swiftly before mine.

A flood of triumph surged over my heart.

"Madge!" I whispered. "Madge!" and in hot burning words I pleaded my own cause, for all the world forgetting about Adam's.

At last Madge turned to me. Again her eyes met mine. This time they did not fall, and in their clear, silent depths I read the sweetest story that a man can read, the old-world story of a woman's love.

No need to say more. The morning sped.

I asked Madge why she came. She laid her hands upon my shoulders, looked into my eyes, and said: "I came to ask what a woman ought to do, when the only man she cares for will not say he cares for her, although she knows he does."

"You find the answer satisfactory?" "Perfectly!"

Adam, like the good fellow that he is, was my best man.

Confused Young Man—"Why, Miss Bella, I—I scarcely expected to meet you at a roller skating rink."

Self-Possessed Young Woman—"I'm not at all astonished at meeting you, Mr. Smiley. All sorts of people come here."

Coffee Creams

For cups beat one egg, add half pint of milk, salt, and one tablespoonful of oil. Sift in one cupful of flour. Mix until smooth and cool for 1 hour. Heat the cups in hot fat, drain, dip in batter, and fry in hot fat until brown. Remove from iron, invert and drain. Fill with this mixture: Beat four egg yolks and four tablespoonfuls of sugar in a saucepan, add one cupful milk. Stir over fire until they thicken; add three tablespoonfuls of strong coffee, one heaping tablespoonful and a half of powdered gelatin dissolved in half a cupful of milk. Cool, fold in one cupful of whipped cream, stir until it begins to stiffen, and pour into the cups. Top with meringue.

Powder for Baby

About the best powder for baby's tender skin during the hot weather, especially when he chafes so easily, is prepared by scorching four parts corn starch and adding when cool one part powdered boric acid. It may be placed in an empty powder box on a thin white muslin bag. It is inexpensive and quickly made. Five cents worth of boric acid will last a long time. I used this on my baby when olive oil or talcum powder failed and found it an almost instant relief.

Cherry Jam

Stalk and stone six pounds of cherries and put them in a basin, bruising them slightly to let the juice run. Put into a preserving kettle one pint of red currant juice and one pound of sugar and stir the contents of the pan over the fire until melted, when it boils put in the cherries and their juice, and four and one-half pounds of sugar, let it boil fast for thirty minutes removing all scum; then lift the pan off the fire, let the contents cool a little, put in preserve jars and seal.

French Trifle

Soak a fresh baked cold jelly roll in one cupful of fruit juice; allow it to stand for one hour. Whip one cupful of cream and add to it one tablespoonful of sugar and one teaspoonful of vanilla extract. Just before serving decorate it with the cream in horizontal lines, using a forcing bag and star tube. Garnish it prettily with the stalk and leaves of angelica, and place here and there a few sugar roses.

Cake Cases

By an approved recipe make some sponge-cakes. Bake in small buttered cups or tins. When cold cut a piece from the center of each cake. Fill the cavity thus made with ripe strawberries. Put strips of angelica across to form handles. Serve whipped and sweetened cream with the berry baskets thus made.

DOWN IN TENNESSEE.

Jim Bronson had been arrested for larceny, the charge being that he stole a possum and a steel trap, belonging to Charles Washington, and, pursuant to his demand, was being tried before a justice of the peace, by a jury of six colored folks.

Washington, sworn, said: "Jedge, I sot a trap near a cohn fiel' side a big gum tree for to catch er possum, which all us colored folks need once in er while. When I go ter see de trap dere's possum sign eroun', but de trap am gone, en I see man tracks all er bout dat place."

"Jedge, I sho' was mad. I took dat track like er houn' an' bymbye I see dis hyah 'fendant on de road, wif er bag on his back. I done shook dat bag, jedge, an' my trap an' possum drapped out'n it. De possum I eat, but dere's de trap an' heah's de man. Jedge, yoh honoh. Dat's all I gotter say."

Washington stepped down and the jury looked solemn. It appeared bad for the defendant, but he was not in the least downcast as he took the witness stand.

"Dese hyah town dudes," said Jim, pointing to the complainant, at whom everyone in the court room gazed, "make me sick. Dey 'low as how dey own ev'ryting dat looks good to dem. Dey ain't satisfy at home, but dey come trapesing down heah acting biggity, tryin' ter put ober us 'cause we all is country folks."

"Jedge, I likes possum myself, but I hunt 'im wid er dawg and er torch like er game sport oughter."

"Dat night I was showin' er houn' pup how to foller er trail, when he lit out, an' I knew me an' de ol' ooman 'ud have er possum fer supper, Jedge, I dess see dat possum rite 'fo' me in de dish, all brown."

The jury became intensely interested at this point.

"I shet my eyes an' see dat possum wid sweet 'taters all piled 'round him, jedge, and de gravy oozin'—not runnin', jedge—but jes' a-oozin' out'n de skin an' drippin', drippin' all ober dem sweet 'taters, an' er jug er—"

A yell from a staid member of the jury brought the recital to a sudden pause.

"Well, jedge, I jes' natcherly took after dat fool houn', but he was plum out er hearin', so I guv up an' start fur home. De day was jes' breakin' when I see dis possum right 'fo' me. Den I look ergin, an' I see he foot in er trap. Den I walk er way, 'cause I won't take no man's possum, jedge."

"When I git er li'l way off, I look back, an' dat li'l possum he er sittin' up holdin' out his han's jes' askin' me ter take him erlong. Den I say, 'Jim, you all ain't goin' let dat li'l possum out hyah all be heself in de big swamp, is yo? He don't belong to de man what sot dat trap. He didn't raise him. Dat man don't own de land de trap am on. Possum he own boss.' An' den, jedge, I hol' my bag in front dat possum an' dat li'l cuss walk right in, trap an' all. I know dat trap 'long some man, but ef dat li'l possum done brung it wif him into my bag, dat's no business ob mine."

"An' jedge, dat's de troof, I ain't touch dat trap. Dere it is wid er pore li'l possum's foot still in it. I ain't got er smell ob dat possum, an' I ain't stole nothin'."

The justice read the law as to wild animals and explained the meaning of larceny, and the jury, looking at each other significantly, returned a verdict of "not guilty" without leaving their seats.—George Rowsey.

Not a Railway Servant.

"What is your trade?" said the lawyer to the witness.

"Platelayer," replied the man.

The lawyer asked him a host of other questions, then harped back again on the subject of his employment.

"I understand you work on the railway, my man?"

"Oh, no, I don't," replied the witness.

"But you just said you did," persuaded the lawyer.

"Beg your pardon, I never said anything about the railway."

"Come, come, don't trifle with the court, my man. You said you were a platelayer."

"Well," replied the witness, imperturbably, "isn't a waiter a platelayer?"

Two of a Kind.

A distinguished specialist in Washington was called upon a week or two ago by an eminent government official for treatment for a nervous ailment.

"The first thing you must do," said the physician, after an examination, "is to give up both smoking and drinking."

Whereupon the eminent official became real peevish. "Look here, doctor," he burst out, "now you're talking just like my wife!"
